Portugal gets Gold Medal for Remote Working

Once again, Portugal has hit the headlines and been placed at the top of a survey. This time it has been ranked as the best place in the world to travel and work remotely.

This is according to a survey by the travel research website, Momondo.

With it's sublime climate, friendly people, short flights and fast internet people can now enjoy living and working here at the same time

The full survey including twenty two considerations, split into six categories:

- Local prices,
- Social life,
- Health and safety,
- Remote working conditions,
- Travel cost and accessibility and
- Weather.

According to Momondo:

“Portugal has become known as the best country in the world for remote work, with high classifications in all categories including weather, social life, low crime rate and affordable cost of living. Portugal also has a visa for digital nomads, and many residents have a high level of English, which is a strong point for expats”.

The survey took place in Autumn 2021 and over 100 countries were assessed.

It's no surprise to us with many of our clients seeking to work remotely. Some need to fly back occasionally but with trends towards more technology like Zoom etc this requirement is no longer so necessary.

If you think Portugal is the place for you, then get in touch and we will find you the perfect home to work or not to work!
